The first of these is the fact that the government has a long history of intervention in the economy. This intervention has taken many forms, from price controls to direct ownership of key industries. The result has been a complex and often inefficient system of economic control.

The second major factor is the government's role in social welfare.
 Through its various agencies, the government has provided a wide range of social services, from public housing to social security.
 While these programs have helped to reduce poverty and provide a basic level of social security, they have also created a large and often inefficient bureaucracy.

The third major factor is the government's role in foreign affairs. Through its foreign policy, the government has played a central role in the world economy. This role has been particularly evident in the area of international trade, where the government has often imposed restrictions and controls that have distorted the market.

The fourth major factor is the government's role in education.
 Through its various agencies, the
 government has provided a wide range of educational services, from public schools to higher education. While these programs have helped to provide a basic level of education for all Americans, they have also created a large and often inefficient bureaucracy.

CHICAGO, April 11 (AP) — A report that the government is planning to increase its control over the economy has caused concern among business leaders.
 The report, which came from a government source, said that the government is planning to increase its control over the economy in a number of ways, including the imposition of new price controls and the expansion of its role in social welfare. Business leaders are concerned that these actions will lead to a more centralized and inefficient government.
 They argue that the government should focus on reducing its role in the economy and allowing the market to operate more freely.

FORD'S OWN INQUIRY LED TO HIS APOLOGY

Mr. Paine Says Overturn He Suggested Brought His Request to "Go to It."

EDITOR MADE CHANGE

Editorial Ford Ordered Campaign Against Jews to Further His Ambitions for President.

Joseph A. Paine, head of the New York field staff of the United States Secret Service, who formerly was stationed in Detroit, told in an interview published in his part in the investigation leading up to Henry Ford's apology for and repudiation of The Dearborn Independent's seven-year campaign against the Jews.

Mr. Paine explained that he went to Mr. Ford several months ago to investigate an inaccurate article published by The Dearborn Independent on a subject in which the Secret Service was interested, and that Mr. Ford rebuked one of his editors, warning him that nothing must be printed in the paper without careful heed. Then, according statement that he did not appreciate either the general nature or details of The Dearborn Independent's anti-Jewish articles, and charging that the campaign was begun on Mr. Ford's order to take advantage of anti-Jewish prejudice in rural districts for the furtherance of Ford's Presidential ambitions in 1920.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency also issued several statements on the Ford retractions, insisting the theory said to be held in Detroit that Mr. Ford's apology was due to the influence of his son, Edsel Ford, who was said to have attempted to invest $1,000,000 in Palestine mortgage securities a year ago.

Mr. Paine in his statement said: "Several months ago, The Dearborn Independent published an article in which my department was interested. At my first opportunity, I took this up with Harry Bennett, chief of the Ford secret service, whom I have known for a number of years, and called his attention to a number of inaccuracies. When I questioned him as to where he got such information, he made it very plain indeed that his department had nothing to do with authoring it; that it had been handled entirely by the organization of the Independent.

"I then asked him if the same thing was true in regard to the Jewish articles and he said that it was, that the Ford secret service had nothing to do with them. Then he further surprised me by saying that Mr. Ford was really an admirer of the Jews.

"He regards them as an essential people," he said.

"Subsequent to my talk with Bennett, we called on Mr. Ford, and took up with him the article in which I was interested. He promptly called in one of the editors of the magazine later, he said, the negotiations started.

"I want to make it clear that the action by (Mr. Ford) took was entirely of his own free will and accord," Mr. Paine said. "He did it without thought of personal gain, politics, or anything else except to right a wrong to the very best of his ability."

The American Hebrew statement on Mr. Paine says that he resigned as editor of The Dearborn Independent because he refused to launch the anti-Jewish campaign, and quoted him as saying: "The campaign was carried on not only with Mr. Ford's approval but on his orders."

Discussing the comment made in some quarters that Mr. Ford's apology was a step toward the 1928 Presidential nomination, Mr. Paine says: "When Ford first launched the attack on the Jews he was a candidate for the Presidency of the United States, firmly so in his own mind. He figured that the prejudice in the small communities throughout the United States was so strong against the Jews that he would gain three, four or five votes there for every Jewish vote he would lose."

Mr. Paine declares that Mr. Cameron wrote the anti-Jewish articles not because he believed what he wrote but "to please Ford, to reflect Ford's views. As to Mr. Ford's motive in making his apology, Mr. Paine continues:

"Henry Ford loves money, he loves power, he loves leadership. He likes to be first in everything. Ford for years encouraged Cameron in the work of vengeance. Now that he sees the effect of it on himself as well as on others he repudiates Cameron and his work, works toward the Ford's patterns. I will not say

Declares Ford Ordered Campaign Against Jews to Further His Candidacy for President.

Joseph A. Palma, head of the New York Cold Cases of the United States Secret Service, who formerly was stationed in Detroit, told in an interview yesterday of his part in the campaign leading up to Henry Ford's apology for and repudiation of The Dearborn Independent's anti-Jew campaign against the Jews.

Mr. Palma explained that he went to Mr. Ford several months ago to negotiate an independent article written by The Dearborn Independent on a subject in which the Secret Service was interested, and that Mr. Ford revealed one of his plans, warning him that nothing could be published in the future without previous proof. Then, according to Mr. Palma, Mr. Ford told him that he had been making a quiet investigation of the anti-Semitic articles that he had been surprised at statements made by his paper, that he was for the Jews and had intended to stop the campaign and that he would do so.

Mr. Palma went on to say that J. Burns of Detroit, former United States Attorney General, came to New York and had the conversation with Louis Marshall, head of the American Jewish Congress, and Henry Phipps, a Vice President of the American Jewish Congress, who was detailed in justice to the city.

At a certain time, Mr. Palma explained, he was a deputy in New York and had been assigned residence in New York city. He also made it clear that his own part in the anti-Semitic campaign was a personal and not a professional one.

Mr. Palma stated that he had been ordered by Mr. Ford to stop the anti-Semitic campaign and that he had been ordered to stop it.

Mr. Palma said that he then got in touch with Earl J. Davis of Detroit, and through him with Louis Marshall and Nathan D. Perlman. A few days later because he refused to launch the anti-Jewish campaign, and quoted him as saying "The campaign was carried on not only with Mr. Ford's approval but on his orders."

Discussing the comment made in some quarters that Mr. Ford's apology was a step toward the 1928 Presidential nomination, Mr. Phipps says: "When Ford first launched the attack on the Jews he was a candidate for the Presidency of the United States, firmly so, in his own mind. He figured that the prejudice in the small communities throughout the United States was so strong against the Jews that he would gain three, four or five votes there for every Jewish vote he would lose."

Mr. Phipps declares that Mr. Cameron wrote the anti-Jewish articles not because he believed what he wrote but "to please Ford, to reflect Ford's views." As to Mr. Ford's motive in making his apology, Mr. Phipps continues:

"Henry Ford loves money, he loves power, he loves leadership. His idea is to be first in everything. Ford for years encouraged Cameron in the work of vengeance. Now that he sees the effect of it on himself as well as on others he repudiates Cameron and his works. Works written after Ford's pattern will not say the spirit is not contrite. I will not say that he has not been overpowered by the awfulness of that which had been done in his name. I will not say that he is sorry for business reasons alone. You will have to judge that for yourself."

The man with whom Edsel Ford negotiated for a $1,000,000 loan to Palestine, according to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, was Morris Brodberg, a Detroit Zionist, and proprietor of Zionist investment corporations. Although Edsel Ford favored the idea of the Ford fortune cooperating in the rehabilitation of Palestine as the Jewish national home, the plan was discontinued, "the negotiations did not continue due to criticism expressed in certain Zionist quarters of the content of Ford's cooperation. This criticism was based on the fact that an avowed enemy of the Jews, as Henry Ford was then considered, could not be permitted to cooperate with Zionists in the rebuilding of Palestine."

Comments in the German press quoted by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, included the following: "Frankfurter Zeitung: 'The plan was suspended to abandon the Jewish project and now is getting rid of his borrowed opinions.' Berliner Tageblatt: 'Only a short time ago Ford in an interview with the representatives of the Berlin League of Nations, urged the Jewish people to free itself from the slavery of Jewish capital and of the Jewish League of Nations.'"

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency is to publish the following statement from Alfred M. Cohen, president of the Independent Order B'nai B'rith, who is visiting in Prague, Czechoslovakia: "Henry Ford will prove true his ment because he refused to launch the anti-Jewish campaign, and quoted him as saying "The campaign was carried on not only with Mr. Ford's approval but on his orders."

What Federal Judge Raymond Considers 'Contempt of Court'

IN AN EFFORT TO PERMIT AN ACCUSED woman to explain her side of a case that had attracted wide public attention, The Detroit Times interviewed Mrs. Cora Hoffman, a juror in the Sapero-Ford trial last Tuesday after wide circulation of charges against her as a juror.

Because of the publication of her defense in these pages, Judge Raymond publicly rebuked the Times for its publication of the proceedings started against this newspaper.

Below is the interview reported from The Detroit Times so that readers may know what the court considers contempt.

It has been a rule of the Times for years not to print anything against anyone, especially charges involving a woman's reputation, without first attempting to get the accused person's answer to these accusations, in order that there may be simultaneous publication of both sides of the controversy.

Here is the interview
(From last Tuesday's Times)

MRS. HOFFMAN, questioned by newspaper men in her home at 3154 Fourteenth avenue, admitted that she had been grilled by Judge Raymond regarding charges that she had tampered with the woman's jury room and discussed the trial with her.

"I told the judge that I did recall meeting a strange woman in the hall and merely granting her request to let her see the rear room. I do not know the woman."

Mrs. Hoffman then admitted she had been questioned regarding her observations about the witness standing with J. Miller of the Westchester crowd who she said is a real character.

She said she had talked with Miller several times about calling a flat owned by my husband and myself, but I never discussed the Ford-Sapero trial with him.

As to a matter of fact she said last time I talked to him I told him to quit hanging around the court room and passing me and to get out and sell the apartment house.

"Before I was called on this panel I had never heard of Sapero and I knew nothing about Mr. Ford's matters. I did not even know the first day I went to court that it was the matter coming on."

"I've never before done any business of any sort I ever will."

"If any one else would give a verdict against Ford on Thursday I would give a verdict against Ford on Thursday. I had many words of testimony to give to him. I've wanted my friends out to talk to me about the case."

Later Mrs. Hoffman will give testimony that she talks to her in a private place that trying to get hold of something to give the case during the trial. She had had some friends accompany to Henry Ford.

LIBEL SUIT ROCKED BY SCANDAL

By W. K. HUTCHINSON

At New York, the investigation of the gas incident with the jurors in the case of the late Mrs. Ford is being conducted by the federal grand jury. The charges are serious and Judge Raymond ordered an immediate investigation and called in agents of the department of justice to aid him in the inquiry.

MISRIAL POSSIBLE

There was a possibility that the investigation would result in a misrial being declared on the case. The case is being handled by the grand jury and the trial proceed with only 11 jurors.

Laron Dugan, the so-called operative who was sued Ford for $2,000 for damage was in no way connected with the incident according to information obtained by the writer.

The charges were laid before the court last yesterday by Ford's attorneys after the trial had been adjourned because of the illness of George J. Reed.

The Ford attorneys had said in their opening statement that the killing of a woman in the case, which were part of the case. One of the charges was that the defendant had been guilty of a crime. The charges were laid before the court last yesterday by Ford's attorneys after the trial had been adjourned because of the illness of George J. Reed.

JUDGE IN CONFERENCE

It was learned the judge had an hour's conference with the jury last night in his chambers at the Federal Building. The juror was brought to the court house by Deputy U. S. Marshal George Hines and agents of the department of justice. Following this conference, the judge said he was investigating a "matter connected with the case," but declined to give any other details. The juror was said to have caused the case to be adjourned pending a further inquiry before reaching a verdict.

The trial will be resumed until the jury reaches a verdict. Some of the details of the case were included on last page, Col. 8.

SCANDAL ROCKS LIBEL TRIAL

Several reasons for the attack on the investigation by a juror on a case with a value of $2,000 and a case in which the juror is able to at least pay a substantial part of the trial costs will be given with rapidity for the fourteenth day under the examination.

newspaperman. This he said was sufficient to disqualify her as juror.

Aspirer in a separate affidavit, swore he never met Miller and never discussed the trial within the hearing of a juror. He declared it was evident to defendant's counsel that their defense had collapsed and that something had to be done to prevent the trial.

Dependent believes Kaplan concluded that defendant's counsel has been using every means to delay or prevent the personal appearance of Henry Ford for examination before the court, and that the affidavits filed in this cause by the detectives attached to defendant's staff, were made and framed in a desperate attempt to accomplish that purpose and to secure grounds for a mistrial and thereby exhaust the resources of the dependent and defer or prevent the necessity for the appearance of Henry Ford.

ACTION FILED

The Ford motion for a mistrial is as follows:

"Whereupon the above named dependent with a prayer for a mistrial of the trial of the following manner:

"I, Carl Hoffman, one of the defendants in the above

ent of said conversation taking place about 11 a. m., during a recess period, and the second about 12:30 p. m. when the group re-cess was taken, one of three men, whose name at that time was not known to dependent, but whom dependent is informed and believes is known as "Kid" Miller was a man appearing to be from 45 to 50 years of age, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing in the neighborhood of 150 pounds, was bald headed, and was wearing a dark gray overcoat and a dark green hat. On this occasion dependent passed out this man and called him to the attention of Carl Krenk, John Smolar, Joseph Dorman and Joseph Cleman, who were working under the supervision of dependent.

"On Wednesday March 22, 1927, dependent in company with said Smolar, saw these same three men above referred to loitering about the corridors of the third floor of the Post Office Building in the vicinity of the court room where said case was being tried, from 10 a. m. until 12:30 p. m. when said dependent observed the same three men in the inner elevator in the court room. The man "Kid" Miller approached the said Carl Hoffman, who at that time had, spoke to her by name and shook hands with her. They then began to hold a conversation and the said Miller requested the said Carl Hoffman to go to the court room with him, the defendant Miller, who declared that he requested. You can make any amount of money if you will do that." She shook her head and started to walk away. He then took hold of her arm and they continued their conversation until in a few moments of time the said dependent was unable to keep the conversation. She then looked down her chest with Miller and said to him, "I am not here." He replied, "I will see you later." He then walked away and left in company with the other two men above referred to.

"Dependent again saw the above named three men on Wednesday March 23, 1927, at about 11:30 a. m. when they were in the court room for the purpose of waiting for the trial of said case. The said dependent saw them in the court room at about 11:30 a. m. when they were in the court room for the purpose of waiting for the trial of said case. The said dependent saw them in the court room at about 11:30 a. m. when they were in the court room for the purpose of waiting for the trial of said case.

The trial of said case was taken, dependent observed three men of Jewish caste of countenance talking together and when the jurors left the court room one of these men, whom dependent has since been informed and believes the fact to be known as "Kid" Miller, left the court room and approached the said dependent. Dependent heard Miller say to Mrs. Hoffman to go to the court room with Mrs. Hoffman and to get away from Miller. Miller said to her, "It will be worth thousands of dollars to you if you will do that." The said Carl Hoffman did not go with Miller, but returned to the court room. The said Miller then joined his companions and left the court room.

"The said Miller appeared to be about 45 to 50 years of age, about 5 feet 7 inches in height, and about 150 to 175 pounds in weight.

Carl Krenk, a former city detective, also swore to overbearing the above named men. His affidavit is as follows:

"I, Carl Krenk, one of the defendants in the above named case, do hereby swear to the following facts: On the morning of March 22, 1927, at about 11:30 a. m. I observed a man who I previously had been pointed out to me by Carl F. Hahn and whom he had described, swore to seeing Miller confer with Aspirer. His affidavit, in part, follows:

"On March 22, 1927, when the morning recess was taken in the trial of said case, this dependent observed the said Aaron Aspirer as he was leaving the court room to meet the said Miller. They greeted each other in a friendly manner and were talking to each other. The said Aspirer then walked down the corridor towards the court room and at the end of the hallway adjacent to the court room they shook hands with each other and parted.

In the afternoon of said day the said Miller was again at the trial of said case and this dependent saw him shake hands and engage in conversation with Carl Hoffman, one of the jurors sitting in said case, who at that time was well known by sight to this dependent. This dependent did not hear the conversation between them.

William Johnson, another Ford detective, corroborated the charge that Miller met Aspirer. His affidavit is as follows:

"I, William Johnson, one of the defendants in the above named case, do hereby swear to the following facts: On the morning of March 22, 1927, at about the hour of 12:30 p. m. I observed a man who I previously had been pointed out to me by Carl F. Hahn and whom he had ing, "You fellows are getting me in a hell of a mess." Deponent replied, "Why, what are you worrying about, the saloon?"

 The conversation continued and the deponent stated that he knew all about the mention of money made by one "KM" Miller to Mrs Hoffman.

Hoffman then stated, "Yes, I know all about that; she told me about it that night and I said,
 "If you can get $10,000 you can get $20,000, but I've got that all fixed. What if we say it's a real estate deal or mortgage. I can fix that up. Just save my racket."
 In another affidavit, William Creek, a cousin of Hoffman, charged with the same crime as Hoffman, after being convicted in the same case, testified:

"On Friday evening, February 17, 1927, I, the deponent, in consultation with Mrs. Susan A.
 Creek, was sitting at the home of Mrs. Susan A. Creek, and the witness to the witness that deponent

...Hoffman were in an room where he heard the conversation and, to the best of memory of this deponent, said William Hoffman, husband of this deponent, was in vicinity of said house during conversation."

ing stated that he had already advised the court that there was nothing in the affidavits which he had presented which had any tendency to involve either Mr. Sagie or any of his counsel in the matter under consideration and he wanted us to know that he had given the court that assurance, and that their own construction of the matter was that Miller was an unscrupulous law who was acting upon his own initiative and without the knowledge of Mr. Sagie.

Mr. Hanley offered his assurance that he had told the judge that the statements they presented did not intend to involve Mr. Sagie, Mr. Gallagher or any other counsel for plaintiff, the court confirmed that fact.

"The affidavits were then offered to us and were read aloud to the concluding of the reading. Mr. Hanley stated the affidavits were clumsily drawn and had apparently been drafted by the laymen themselves. The affidavits as they presented in the language by the ones themselves is much less complete and comprehensive and of much less value as evidence than in the form into which they have been worked by the attorneys who drafted them.

"The affidavits that were presented on Tuesday morning before Judge Raymond are not the same that were attached to the motion for a mistrial. Practically all of these affidavits were dated April 12, which was the day after Mr. Gallagher had made his motion for a mistrial on the ground of prejudice on the part of the court. During that discussion, there was no disclosure on the part of counsel for defendants that they had either this material or any affidavits, although they would have been then pertinent. Some time after the defendants went on with the re-examination on the Barker-Karpis case, which had been broadly tested as their great staple defense. That defense questioned things, because it was known that all of the things which they brought were in some way connected with the Barker-Karpis case. Maguire's people have any organization that had been formed. Therefore, the fact of the witness became established; and these affidavits were in fact having received on witness which had been in the prosecution for Barker-Karpis case, which counsel for defendants, as sworn officers of the court, were bound to make known to the court immediately upon their receipt.

"The motion presents four grounds for the granting of a mistrial:

"1. That Mr. Sagie's influence was used in the business of his involvement in the original establishment.

"2. That the evidence stated facts that he had no interest factor into the situation. The three real reasons which should have been given justify the present procedure could be:

"First, a desire to stop the case now, because it is being not going to the way that the Ford attorneys thought it should go, or second, that such a separate means have to be taken to prevent or postpone the appearance of Henry Ford on the stand, probably on the readiness of the fact he is either not fit to testify in court or that he does not want examination on the stand, which he has been bound to the world all these years or third, that this might give an opportunity to indict another party - charge is referred to the plaintiff concerned with a supposed law, by the same a charge of dark insinuation the court marked much of the procedure of this trial.

"Mr. Sagie, without objection, has stated in the presence of the reporters that he has spoken to many people in the courtroom and outside of the courtroom and has been asked to by many people and he had not knowledge of any affidavits to a person outside of the courtroom nor has he at any time spoken to any person at a friend with the request or the thought of the hope or the fear that that person would speak to any juror on any matter in the trial or on his account. It should have been just as easy to show 12 Ford detectives to the court this man Miller to the court to accuse Mr. Sagie as to show them to have made the affidavits in this case. This entire matter bears the hall of a perfect follow-up, a perfect method for securing a verdict of any sort to delay the appearance of Henry Ford on the stand and to give these defendants a chance to turn the case over to some other jury.

"It is not my intention to attempt to debate the grounds of the material, as far as the evidence in The Times is concerned. I am to withdraw myself, as a lawyer before the court, and to leave the matter to the jury.

"In preparing for the trial in this case, I consulted with the defense lawyers and with Ford people in connection with the gathering and matters in the case. I had an interview with Mr. Sagie, I have been aware of the activities of their detectives in the courtroom, wherever, through the attorneys.

"Every regular stand of the court has been aware of the fact that Ford detectives have been in constant attendance and knowing the procedure of the trial.

Judge Raymond today declared the Sapiro-Ford case a mistrial, on motion of the Ford attorneys. The Court declared he was granting the motion "largely because justice has been sacrificed on the cross of unethical and depraved journalism." This was in reference to an interview with Mrs. Cora Hoffman, the accused woman juror, printed by a local newspaper while the trial was in progress.

Counsel for the defense presented a motion for a mistrial when Aaron Sapiro's suit against Henry Ford was taken to the Michigan Supreme Court. The Michigan Supreme Court today declared the trial a mistrial. Judge Chief Justice Moore today referred the case to the Michigan Court of Appeals for a new trial.

FORD-SAPIRO SUIT MISTRIAL

Department of Justice continued their investigation into the charges against Mrs. Hoffman. The accused juror was under questioning in the office of Mr. Wilson through most of the day, and Judge Raymond and Mr. Wilson conferred on several occasions.

SUMMARY OF CHARGE.

The allegations are summarized as follows in the motion for a mistrial:

Mrs. Hoffman, one of the jurors empaneled, falsely testified, in her preliminary examination as to her qualifications to serve to the effect that her husband, William Hoffman, was engaged only in the plumbing and heating business, whereas his principal business is the operation of a public saloon commonly known as a blind pig in the residence occupied by her and her husband at 5154 Fourteenth avenue.

At the saloon intoxicating liquors, beer and whiskey are sold in violation of the laws of the United States and the State of Michigan.

In the preliminary examination Mrs. Hoffman falsely testified that she had an interest in the pending case, when, in fact, prior to said examination, she had stated that she hoped she would be selected for jury service in said cause, and if she were so selected it would be very desirable for the defendant, Ford, as she did not like his methods or anything about him.

Mrs. Hoffman, in violation of the instructions of the court and during the trial of said case, discussed at length said cause with the persons unknown to the defendants, and in said conversation and opinions expressed in a daily newspaper published in the city of Detroit on the 18th day of April, 1937.

AT RISK FOR REVERSAL.

IN COURT ROOM

Albert F. Bates, chief investigator for the Detroit Motor Co., advised that he had been attending at the trial of Mrs. Ford on April 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, he said, he observed the defendant and observed her going to the jury room with a Jewish man, the name of whom he did not know.

One of these men, who was a Jew, he said, was not known to him, but who defendant is believed to believe is known as "The Miller" was a man appearing to be about 35 years of age, about 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighed in the neighborhood of 170 pounds, was clean shaven and was wearing a dark suit coat and a dark garment.

Bates swore that in the jury room he saw the man who was conferring about the trial with the foreman and that at the time he saw Miller, Miller was wearing a dark suit coat and a dark garment. Miller, according to Bates, told Mrs. Hoffman to go to the jury room and that Miller thereupon said: "You can make several hundred dollars if you can do that."

WOULD BE MILLER.

Mrs. Hoffman, who had started to work away at the trial, Bates and Miller then went to the jury room and they had a conversation in a low tone. Bates said the conversation was in the end she looked about the jury room and saw Miller thereupon she said: "The Miller is the man who is going to be the foreman of the jury." He said she said: "I don't know who he is, but I don't like him." He said she said: "I don't know who he is, but I don't like him."

On Thursday, March 27, Mrs. Hoffman was asked to sign a check for $100.00. Mrs. Hoffman said she did not know where the check was to be cashed. She said she did not know where the check was to be cashed. She said she did not know where the check was to be cashed.

The defendant's argument is that the plaintiff's claim is barred by the statute of limitations. The plaintiff claims that the defendant is liable for the damages sustained by the plaintiff as a result of the defendant's negligence. The defendant argues that the plaintiff's claim is barred by the statute of limitations because the plaintiff failed to file a lawsuit within the prescribed time period. The court will consider the facts of the case and determine whether the statute of limitations applies.

MRS. HOPMANN CLEARED OF BRIBE ALLEGATIONS

Judge Raymond Also Gives Aaron Sapiro a Clean Slate in Affair.

By WILLIAM S. RICHARDS.

Aaron Sapiro's $100,000 bribe charge against Mrs. Cora Hoffmann was cleared up yesterday.

Members of the jury who were going to discuss the case at its criminal trial with one exception they were not prejudiced and had formed an opinion favoring either side.

It remained in fact a case of bribery and determination and with a brilliant oratory which in Judge Raymond's an unethical and depraved journalist, a court order to the district attorney's office to proceed with contempt action against a nation's largest newspaper a reiteration by Sapiro's principal spokesman of his charge that the whole proceedings had the unhealthy odor of a frame-up, and everyone in a quandary as to when a trial can be held.

It had however with a word of forgiveness for Mrs. Cora Hoffmann the woman who was charged with an infamous conduct the Ford attorneys based their motion to have the case declared a mistrial.

Advocate Mrs. Hoffmann.

Before discharging the jury, Judge Raymond in a formal opinion, said that while the jury might have been misled by newspaper reports and statements of public investigators but that the jury intentionally mistook the law and the facts.

Jury Was Cleared

Members of the jury who were going to discuss the case at its criminal trial with one exception they were not prejudiced and had formed an opinion favoring either side.

Change Set Forth

The judge also said that the jury was misled by the newspaper reports and statements of public investigators but that the jury intentionally mistook the law and the facts.

The jury was cleared of any bias or prejudice and was ready to hear the case. The judge called the court to order and the trial began.

Your honor has some little conception of what I mean. You must have also some faint conception upon the physical reaction of a woman to be granted what will give her to some degree weakened in carrying on the trial."

Calls Justice Harsh

Gallagher said he never had known a man where justice was not merely blind but apparently was made blind and blinded and given to the defendant. He said that he thought Gallagher intended that he would go on continuing the case.

"If these 12 determine how it is a much better man than Justice Hanson can be, and if the other 12 are not, they would be a very good deal better than the 12 who have been here to try against it," he said.

Gallagher said he had such a feeling of indignation against the case and the intelligence of the defendant that he had not been able to get on with the case. He said that he had been told that the case was a very important one and that it was a very important one.

RICHES OFFERED TO WOMAN JUROR, DETECTIVES SAY

It's a Perfect Frame-up, Answers Sapiro; Mistrial Will be Asked in Federal Court.

HOFMANN TOLD WIFE TO HOLD OUT FOR $15,000 FEE, PETITION SAYS

Gallagher Denies "Go-between" Is Friend of Defendant Husband Called Operator of Blind Pig.

BY WILLIAM C. FICHARDT

Offered by the... charges in which lawyers for Henry Ford... counter charge that an attempt is being made to victimize Sapiro by means of a "perfect frame-up" the $1,000,000 libel suit of the attorney agriculturist against the auto manufacturer in federal court is expected to break up and founder today.

The damage action was caught up yesterday in a storm of accusation by Ford agents—charges that a woman juror was offered "thousands of dollars to have luncheon with a man friendly with Sapiro," that she was heard to say that she would make things unhealthy for "Old Man Ford" if she was selected for jury service, that her husband ran a blind pig.

It was a storm that will not spend itself completely, until this morning, when Judge Fred M. Raymond in federal court, is asked to rule on a motion of Ford counsel that the case be declared a mistrial and that the jury as now constituted be discharged.

The alleged causes which the Ford lawyers will cite are these:

1. That Mrs. K... of the juror... decided in her preliminary examination as to her qualifications to serve; that her husband, William Hofmann, was engaged only in the plumbing and heating business, whereas his principal business is the operation of a public saloon, commonly known as a blind pig, in the residence occupied by her and her husband at 5136 Fourteenth avenue. At the saloon intoxicating liquors are sold in violation of the laws of the United States and Michigan.

2. In preliminary examination Mrs. Hofmann falsely testified that she had no interest in the pending case, when in fact, prior to said examination she had stated she hoped she would be selected for jury service and that if she were it would not be very healthy for the defendant Ford as she distributed his methods in arguing about him.

4. Mrs. Hofmann, in violation of the instructions of the court held conversations from time to time with a certain person known as "Kid Miller" who was in frequent attendance at the trial and who in the presence of Mrs. Hoffmann engaged in conversation with and was apparently in friendly terms with Aaron Miller.

This formal charge was filed in court late yesterday afternoon and copies were delivered to William H. Galloway, assistant United States attorney, James A. Reed, chief of police, Edward J. Connelley and Walter J. Connelley, for the automobile theft.

Miller, chief of police for Baltimore and Seattle, is the only law officer in the country to have been named in formal charges in the case.

States Three Reasons

Miller, who is 47 years old, is a native of Baltimore and has lived in that city since 1908. He is a member of the Baltimore Police Department and has been in the service since 1912. He is a member of the Police Association and has been in the service since 1912.

It's a real damn deal of mortgage. I can't get that up just now by Christ. That's the only thing I can do.

The Ford defense took up the story of allegations with an affidavit signed by William Orth, a resident of Dearborn, who states that he and his wife, Susan A. Orth, visited the home of Mrs. Hoffmann, at 1714 W. 17th St., at 11:30 p.m. on Sunday evening, February 27.

When they arrived they found there Mrs. Corn Hoffman, her husband and Mrs. C. Hoffman, the husband's sister.

Tells of Conversation

During the evening Orth says in his affidavit, "a conversation took place between Corn Hoffman and Marie Hoffman, during which the subject of a possible bribe was discussed in the jury in federal district court because a topic of conversation during the course of the conversation Mrs. Hoffman said, in substance and in fact, 'I hope she would be honest for service in the Ford case and if she was, it would be a very healthy for me and my family.'"

Orth says that Mrs. Hoffman said that she would be honest for service in the Ford case and if she was, it would be a very healthy for me and my family. Both Helms and Spivey, who issued formal statements to the press an hour or so after receiving copies of the Ford documents, accused the Ford attorneys of bad faith in framing the best of their clients.

That Mrs. Cook Helms had been engaged in conversation and had been on friendly terms with Aaron Spivey.

As a matter of fact, we are sure that the Ford investigators know all about Mr. Helms's business long before the examination and jury. They had their investigators out and had reports on every prospective juror right before them during the entire examination. It is impossible to believe that with all their investigators they did not know this fact, which has apparently, according to present affidavits, been known in and over since.

Moreover, it is entirely unnecessary to bring into this case any matter reflecting on the integrity of honor of Mrs. Helms.

The third ground, the giving of an interview to a newspaper, is sufficient in itself to warrant the granting of a motion for adjournment of the court, and all of this could have been done without a single word reflecting on the honor or integrity of any woman juror.

Would Protect Women

As a matter of fact all of the accused in the Helms case are agreed to enter Mrs. Helms's and Mr. Helms's names in the records of the court.

In preparing for the trial of this case, I acquainted myself with the device methods of the Ford people in conducting litigation and matters in which they had a part. I have long been aware of the activities of their detectives in obtaining jurors, witnesses, litigants, attorneys and judges.

Agents Always Assured

Every regular attorney in court has been aware of the fact that Ford detectives have been in constant attendance and knowing the practices of the Ford people. It is clear to any that Mr. Spivey could not have carried openly with this Helms case or anybody else as charged in the court-room or outside.

acting herein under any circumstances.

With Stewart Wanley, the Ford contending the impossibility of continuing the case before a jury of 11 and Gallagher, for having admitting there can be no legitimate defense to the complaints against the interview given by Mrs. Hoffmann to a newspaper. It is anticipated that Judge Raymond will endorse the recommendation that the present jury be discharged and a retrial ordered.

Both sides said yesterday they were ready to proceed immediately with such a retrial once a new jury has been obtained.

Mrs. Hoffmann was at her home last night, however, after several hours' questioning at the trial's hearing, and refused to talk about the charges filed by the Ford defense.

"I am not permitted to discuss any angle of the trial," she said in a brief, which caused the judge to adjourn the trial.

George E. Hoffmann, deputy United States marshal, who is charged with the care of the jury, said the trial is to be held at the court house in the afternoon. He said that Mrs. Hoffmann is being held at the court house.

William Hoffmann has a plumbing business located in a back in the rear of the house.

Mrs. Hoffmann was not at home last night when an interview was called at her residence by Westchester News. Neighbors said that she and her wife had been there part of the day, but that they had not answered the doorbell, even for the grocery. The couple has resided at the address for about three years and were friends of Mrs. Vera Hoffmann. It is said.

Mrs. Hoffmann was connected with the color firm with offices on several streets for several months, but recently resigned and started in business for herself. She lives in the neighborhood which was where he had opened offices.

Attention: Director 1.

Dear Sir:-

Referring to the investigative action of this Department in connection with the FORD-SAPIRO matter, I beg to advise that Mr. Hoffmann, the husband of the woman juror connected with this investigation, has requested of me to return certain pencil notes that he gave me, or rather loaned me, during this investigation.

I would respectfully request your instructions relative to returning these to Mr. Hoffmann, before I allow them to leave the files of this office. For your information, please be advised that these were, in truth and fact, merely loaned to me and not relinquished entirely by Mr. Hoffmann.

Respectfully,

Henry Ford Negation, Rise of Jewish Question: Palestine Remained the Focus of Jewish World's Attention

The Daily Jewish Courier, published in New York, is a prominent voice in the Jewish community. It covers a wide range of topics, from local news to international affairs. The paper's focus on the Jewish question and the state of Palestine is particularly notable. It provides a platform for Jewish leaders and scholars to discuss current events and offer their perspectives. The paper's history is long and distinguished, and it continues to be a vital source of information for its readers.

The rise of the Jewish question in the early 20th century was a complex phenomenon. It was rooted in a combination of factors, including the rapid growth of the Jewish population in Europe, the rise of nationalism, and the emergence of antisemitic ideologies. The Jewish community in America was also affected by these trends, and it sought to address the challenges it faced. The Daily Jewish Courier played a key role in this process, providing a voice for the community and advocating for its interests.

The state of Palestine has long been a focus of Jewish attention. It is a land of deep religious and historical significance, and it has been the subject of much debate and controversy. The Jewish community in America has been particularly active in supporting the Jewish National Fund and other organizations that work to develop the land. The Daily Jewish Courier has been a leading voice in this effort, providing news and analysis on the situation in Palestine and advocating for Jewish rights.

The Jewish community in America has made significant contributions to the country's development and culture. It has established a strong presence in various fields, including business, education, and the arts. The Daily Jewish Courier is proud to be a part of this community and to provide its members with the news and information they need. The paper's commitment to Jewish rights and the state of Palestine is a testament to its dedication to the community.

September 7, 1922.

Memorandum for Mr. Burns:

[redacted] called by telephone this morning before you arrived, and stated that the Secretary of Commerce had received information to the effect that HENRY FORD had purchased the Banner Fork Coal Company in 1920 for $1,200,000. b7c

This coal company is located near Covington, Kentucky, and the United States Attorney at Covington is in possession of information to the effect that the mine is producing thirty (30) cars per day, and that Ford is selling one-half (1/2) of the output at $10.00 per ton, which, of course, is an exorbitant price.

[redacted] requested that if possible we obtain from the United States Attorney such information as he has in this matter, as the Secretary of Commerce is very desirous of securing it in view of the recent accusation by Ford that coal companies are profiteering on him. b7c

I told [redacted] I would at once take up the matter with you, and if you will advise me what action you desire taken, I will draft the necessary correspondence. b7c

Respectfully,

J. E. H.

Vets Oppose Ford Award

Fur Post Protest Plan to

Decorate 'Isolationist'

A sharply worded protest against the proposed presentation of the Distinguished Service Medal of the American Legion to Henry Ford at the convention of the Legion next September has been made by Fur Post No. 1049, one of the largest posts in New York City.

In resolutions unanimously passed at a special meeting, Ford was assailed as an isolationist, as one who thwarted military preparedness and as the sponsor of an anti-Semitic campaign which "became the forerunner and foundation of Nazi propaganda."

When it became known that the Trophies and Award Committee of the Legion had designated Ford as one of three to receive the award, the highest given by the Legion, there was indignation among the members of Fur Post.

The other two were the late Secretary of the Navy Knox and Gen. H. H. Arnold, of the Army Air Forces. Last year, the medal was given to Gen. George Marshall and Adm. King. Other recipients have been Gens. Pershing and MacArthur. Only 16 such awards have been made in the past 25 years.

Warns of Ridicule

The resolutions said: "We vehemently protest against the award of the Distinguished Service Medal to Henry Ford, whose claim to fame rests primarily upon his contribution to industrial mass production and his creation of a vast private industrial dynasty and monetary fortune, and whose claim to public recognition for service to our country is denied, contested and held in serious doubt by a substantial part of our citizenry for the following reasons:

"1—His assistance to the America First Committee, an organization of isolationists who before Pearl Harbor strove their utmost to keep our nation blindfolded and unprepared to meet the reality of the danger of aggression.

"2—His employment of one of its accredited leaders, Lindbergh.

Anti-Semitic Articles

"3—His sponsorship of the vicious anti-Semitic articles in the Dearborn Independent, owned and published by him, which for seven years preached, fostered and incited anti-Semitism and spread its malignant seed throughout our land, and sought thereby to divide our Nation internally and to foment hatred and disunity, and was the first to conduct a systematic campaign of anti-Semitism which became the forerunner and foundation of Nazi propaganda throughout the world, and sought to perpetuate, with the vast power of his money, an established fraud against an entire race which is still being perpetuated with the power of his name in his book entitled The International Jew.

"4—His acquiescence in the continuing publication and circulation of books and pamphlets containing the Dearborn Independent articles, or extracts therefrom without objection or hindrance from him."

The resolutions will now go to the county committee, then the state committee and finally the national executive committee of the Legion.

ON FARM AND FACTORY

DANGER to our country is to be apprehended not so much from the influence of new things as from our forgetting the value of old things. At present, much that is blamed on the new thing—the machine—should perhaps be blamed on our forgetting what we had before the machine came, namely, the land. The two belong together; they cannot live apart; there is no antagonism between them; they must be reunited.

I do not look for less but more use of machinery. If the world is to have even a minimum supply of goods, it must utilize the machine. The people will never willingly forego the help which the machine gives them in their work.

Besides, machinery makes more jobs. It enables every one to enjoy inexpensively the comforts and conveniences of modern living conditions. As for overproduction, we have never yet had a sufficient production of all the things which the family needs. It would be splendid if the world should seriously attempt to overproduce everything that everybody needs! We should then discover that our present machine facilities could not even catch up with the need. Give the world a money system that makes it easier for goods to flow from man to man, and all the factories on earth could not begin to supply a tenth of the demand.

But it is possible to expect of the machine more than it can do. We cannot eat or wear machines. If the world were one vast machine shop, it would die. When it comes to sustaining life, we go to the fields. The machine may help us plant, cultivate, harvest, grind and bake the grain for bread. The machine may weave and cut and sew for clothing. The machine may transport these necessities for our use. In doing so, it serves in partnership with the land. And it is that relation and balance which I am urging upon our people today.

Ten years ago we started seven village industries on small water power sites, all within twenty miles of Dearborn, our purpose being to combine the advantages of city wages with country living. The experiment has been a continuous success. Overhead cost has been less than that in the big factory, and the workers would not bear of going back to the city shops. As they are free to till land in the growing season, throughout these trying times they have all remained self-sustaining. Their security is produced by machine and farm, not by one alone.

While this experiment has fully justified itself, I have felt that it is only a step in the right direction. Excellent as village industries are, they do not really bring industry and agriculture together. For a long time now I have believed that industry and agriculture are natural partners and that they should begin to recognize and practice their partnership. Each of them is suffering from ailments which the other can cure. Agriculture needs a wider and steadier market; industrial workers need more and steadier jobs. Can each be made to supply what the other needs? I think so.

The link between is Chemistry. In the vicinity of Dearborn we are farming twenty thousand acres for everything from sunflowers to soy beans. We pass the crops through our laboratory to learn how they may be used in the manufacture of motor cars and thus provide an industrial market for the farmers' products. I foresee the time when industry shall no longer denude the forests which require generations to mature, nor use up the mines which were ages in the making, but shall draw its raw material largely from the annual produce of the fields. The dinner table of the world is not a sufficient outlet for the farmers' products; there must be found a wider market if agriculture is to be all that it is competent to become. And where is that market to be found if not in industry?

I am convinced that we shall be able to get out of yearly crops most of the basic materials which we now get from forest and mine. That is to say, we shall grow annually many if not most of the substances needed in manufacturing. When that day comes, and it is surely on the way, the farmer will not lack a market and the worker will not lack a job. More people will live in the country. The present unnatural condition will be naturally balanced again. Our foundations will be once more securely laid in the land.

The day of small industry near the farm will return, because much of the material grown for industry can be given its first processing by the men who raised it. The master farmer will become, as he was in former years, master of a form of industry besides.

An old Roman said that corn was never so plentiful in Rome as when the men who ruled the state were those who also tilled the fields. It will be so with our people when those who fabricate the utilities of the world are those who raise the raw material from the fields.

One thing is certain—we must go on—present conditions cannot be stabilized—life goes on. I suppose that in 1632 there were people who urged that the world had gone far enough and that it should be halted and hardened into the pattern of 1632. And again in 1732, others thought that a line should be drawn and conditions stabilized. In 1832 the same proposal—it is always made—every generation makes it. Suppose the world had halted at any of those dates! Are we to declare that 1932 is the date at which development must cease and the world be stabilized just as it is? It cannot be done. Life would burst any barriers we might raise against its ongoing. We do not yet control all the materials out of which to assemble a world that is worthy to endure unchanged. Our times are primitive. True progress is yet to come. The industrial age has scarcely dawned as yet; we see only its first crude beginnings.

We are pioneers, and pioneering has its hardships. This generation is composed of economic pilgrims, passing out of less desirable conditions into what we hope shall be more desirable ones. That is the meaning of these times. We are not going back, and false prosperity is not soon coming back. It would be well to interpret present conditions in this light and help each other in the good old pioneer way, as we pass through them. We are going to renew our stake in the land; for the land is the foundation of the economic security which we seek.

WE ARE still in the early stage of world-making. To stabilize conditions at a given point or to reject progress because it brings problems with it, is impossible. We need to plan how to pass through necessary changes with the least human hardship. Economic changes must come and it is possible for men to be in a position to welcome rather than dread them. With factory and farm as partners, with one foot on the soil and one foot planted on industry, we should be in a position to hail the new epoch without fear. The land would protect us from needless anxiety.

HENRY FORD ON SELF-HELP

My views of how people can best be helped are not new. The present period has only brought them into intensive application. Nearly twenty years ago when we established our minimum wage, which is now six dollars a day, we had the other side of the problem. It was then a problem of sudden prosperity. We tried to teach our employes how to handle their resources to the best advantage and how to evade the parasites which wait on every hand for the workers' wages. There was no criticism of our methods then; in fact, they were commended. They are the same methods now with such improvements as experience has suggested.

I said, in the first of this series, that being out of some one's employ need not mean being out of work. In the last analysis independence means self-dependence. Dependence on some one else for employment in busy times may too easily become dependence on some one else for support in slack times.

If it is right and proper to help people to become wise managers of their own affairs in good times, it cannot be wrong to pursue the same object in dull times. Independence through self-dependence is a method which must commend itself when understood.

Methods of self-help are numerous and great numbers of people have made the stimulating discovery that they need not depend on employers to find work for them—they can find work for themselves. I have more definitely in mind those who have not yet made that discovery, and I should like to express certain convictions I have tested.

The land! That is where our roots are. There is the basis of our physical life. The farther we get away from the land, the greater our insecurity. From the land comes everything that supports life, everything we use for the service of physical life. The land has not collapsed or shrunk in either extent or productivity. It is there waiting to honor all the labor we are willing to invest in it, and able to tide us across any dislocation of economic conditions.

No unemployment insurance can be compared to an alliance between a man and a plot of land. With one foot in industry and another foot in the land, human society is firmly balanced against most economic uncertainties. With a job to supply him with cash, and a plot of land to guarantee him support, the individual is doubly secure. Stocks may fail, but seedtime and harvest do not fail.

I am not speaking of stop-gaps or temporary expedients. Let every man and every family at this season of the year cultivate a plot of land and raise a sufficient supply for themselves or others. Every city and village has vacant space whose use would be permitted. Groups of employed men could rent farms for small sums and operate them on the co-operative plan. Employed men, in groups of ten, twenty or fifty, could rent farms and operate them with several unemployed families. Or, they could engage a farmer with his farm to be their farmer this year, either as employe or on shares. There are farmers who would be glad to give a decent indigent family a corner of a field on which to live and provide against next winter. Industrial concerns everywhere would gladly make it possible for their men, employed and unemployed, to find and work the land. Public-spirited citizens and institutions would most willingly assist in these efforts at self-help.

I do not urge this solely or primarily on the ground of need. It is a definite step to the restoration of normal business activity. Families who adopt self-help have that amount of free money to use in the channels of trade. That in turn means a flow of goods, an increase in employment, a general benefit.

When I suggested this last year and enabled our own people to make the experiment, the critics said that it would mean competition with the farmer. If that were true it would constitute a serious defect in the plan. My interest in the success and prosperity of the farmer is attested by my whole business career.

The farmer is carrying in the form of heavy taxes the burden of families who cannot afford to buy his produce. Enabling them to raise their own food would not be taking a customer away from the farmer, but would be actually lifting a family off the tax-payer's back. It is argued that farm products are so cheap that it is better to buy than grow them. This would be impressive if every one had money to spend. Farm products are cheap because purchasing power is low. And the farmer paying taxes helps to pay the difference. The course I suggest is not competition with the farmer; it deprives him of no customer; it does not affect the big market crops. Gardens never hurt the farmer. Partnerships between groups of city men and individual farmers certainly help the farmer. When a family lifts itself off the welfare lists or increases its free cash by raising its food, it actually helps the farmer as it does every one else, including itself. In fact, it is fundamental that no one is hurt by self-help. In the relief of tax burdens and the revival of industry the farmer would share the benefit.

I do not wish to be too detailed in this suggestion. I know what we shall do in our own part of the country and with our own people. How this method is to be suited to conditions in all parts of the country must be determined. I am urging Branch Managers of the Ford Motor Company and Ford dealers everywhere to study this suggestion and find the best method of applying it to their communities.

It is not a question of selling land, or of rents. Those who have the land must offer it to those who will use it. We ourselves shall farm large tracts of land, not for profit, but in experimental search for new market outlets for the farmer. We are saying to our people: "Here is the land. How much can you use?" For several years we have been running large crops of everything from sunflowers to soy beans through our chemical laboratory, in an effort to find an annual market for the farmer's produce—but that is a story I shall have to postpone until tomorrow's issue of this publication. I mention it now to show that even in these larger operations we are not entering into competition with the farmer. Our hope for agriculture is to make it the partner of industry.

MANY people have found ways to self-help. Others have yet to learn how. The one wide-open, practical, certain unemployment insurance is the land. A family with its food assured is a family that can face the world. Both employed and unemployed men should invest their labor in the land this season. Hoarded labor is as harmful to the nation as hoarded cash. The family garden helps everybody and hurts none. It even helps the farmer by lifting the burden of public welfare taxes. Let every man and every family cultivate a plot of land this year, first for their own benefit, next for the benefit of trade, and for the benefit of the nation in general.

HENRY FORD ON UNEMPLOYMENT

I HAVE always had to work, whether any one hired me or not. For the first forty years of my life, I was an employe. When not employed by others, I employed myself. I found very early that being out of hire was not necessarily being out of work. The first means that your employer has not found something for you to do; the second means that you are waiting until he does.

We nowadays think of work as something that others find for us to do, call us to do, and pay us to do. No doubt our industrial growth is largely responsible for that. We have accustomed men to think of work that way.

In my own case, I was able to find work for others as well as myself. Outside my family life, nothing has given me more satisfaction than to see jobs increase in number and in profit to the men who handle them. And beyond question, the jobs of the world today are more numerous and profitable in wages than they were even eighteen years ago.

But something entirely outside the workshops of the nation has affected this hired employment very seriously. The word "unemployment" has become one of the most dreadful words in the language. The condition itself has become the concern of every person in the country.

When this condition arrived, there were just three things to be done. The first, of course, was to maintain employment at the maximum by every means known to management. Employment—hire—was what the people were accustomed to; they preferred it; it was the immediate solution of the difficulty. In our plants we used every expedient to spread as much employment over as many employes as was possible. I don't believe in "make work"—the public pays for all unnecessary work—but there are times when the plight of others compels us to do the human thing even though it be but a makeshift; and I am obliged to admit that, like most manufacturers, we avoided layoffs by continuing work that good business judgment would have halted. All of our non-profit work was continued in full force and much of the shop work. There were always tens of thousands employed—the lowest point at Dearborn was 40,000—but there were always thousands unemployed or so meagerly employed, that the situation was far from desirable.

When all possible devices for providing employment have been used and fall short, there remains no alternative but self-help or charity.

I do not believe in routine charity. I think it a shameful thing that any man should have to stoop to take it, or give it. I do not include human helpfulness under the name of charity. My quarrel with charity is that it is neither helpful nor human. The charity of our cities is the most barbarous thing in our system, with the possible exception of our prisons. What we call charity is a modern substitute for being personally kind, personally concerned and personally involved in the work of helping others in difficulty. True charity is a much more costly effort than money-giving. Our donations too often purchase exemption from giving the only form of help that will drive the need for charity out of the land.

Our own theory of helping people has been in operation for some years. We used to discuss it years ago—when no one could be persuaded to listen. Those who asked public attention to these matters were ridiculed by the very people who now call most loudly for some one to do something.

Our own work involves the usual emergency relief, hospitalization, adjustment of debt, with this addition—we help people to alter their affairs in common-sense accordance with changed conditions, and we have an understanding that all help received should be repaid in reasonable amounts in better times. Many families were not so badly off as they thought; they needed guidance in the management of their resources and opportunities. Human nature, of course, presented the usual problems. Relying on human sympathy many develop a spirit of professional indigence. But where co-operation is given, honest and self-respecting persons and families can usually be assisted to a condition which is much less distressing than they feared.

One of our responsibilities, voluntarily assumed—not because it was ours, but because there seemed to be no one else to assume it—was the care of a village of several hundred families whose condition was pretty low. Ordinarily a large welfare fund would have been needed to accomplish anything for these people. In this instance, we set the people at work cleaning up their homes and backyards, and then cleaning up the roads of their town, and then plowing up about 500 acres of vacant land around their houses. We abolished everything that savored of "handout" charity, opening instead a modern commissary where personal I O U's were accepted, and a garment-making school, and setting the cobblers and tailors of the community to work for their neighbors. We found the people heavily burdened with debt, and we acted informally as their agents in apportioning their income to straighten their affairs. Many families are now out of debt for the first time in years. There has appeared in this village not only a new spirit of confidence in life, but also a new sense of economic values, and an appreciation of economic independence which we feel will not soon be lost. None of these things could have been accomplished by paying out welfare funds after the orthodox manner. The only true charity for these people was somehow to get under their burdens with them and lend them the value of our experience to show them what can be done by people in their circumstances.

Our visiting staff in city work has personally handled thousands of cases in the manner above described. And while no one institution can shoulder all the burden, we feel that merely to mitigate present distress is not enough—we feel that thousands of families have been prepared for a better way of life when the wheels of activity begin turning again.

But there is still another way, a third way, so much better than the very best charitable endeavor that it simply forbids us to be satisfied with anything less. That is the way of Self-Help, which I shall discuss in tomorrow's issue of this publication.

THE unemployed man is every one's concern, Henry Ford says—most of all the man's own concern. Being unemployed does not need to mean being out of work. There may be work even though one may not be hired to do it. Mr. Ford begins today a discussion of Employment, Charity and Self-Help as the three courses open to us in present conditions. He does not believe in routine charity because, he says, it is neither kind nor helpful. It does not get under the load or tackle the cause. He describes here a method he has followed. In tomorrow's issue of this publication he will discuss Self-Help.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE DIRECTOR

Re:

Re: CHICAGO TRIBUNE

The Chicago Tribune is presently working on a series of articles to be run in the future in regard to crime conditions in Chicago. In these articles the Tribune will attempt to publicize the hoodlums who control the various types of crime in Chicago. of the Tribune, who is working on these articles, I found that up to this time the Tribune had been unable to obtain information relative to those controlling crime in Chicago, and, to the contrary, found that crime was not nearly as well organized at the present time as it was during the so-called Capone era.

Re: HENRY FORD

For some time the rumor has persisted around Chicago that Mr. Henry Ford is seriously ill, although I understand that those close to him in Detroit have denied this. However, during the week of Ford, voluntarily advised me that in talking to Harry Bennett, Bennett had stated that Mr. Ford is confined to his home and that he was troubled with a "sore foot".

did not believe this, however, and feels that Mr. Ford is quite ill. Those engaged in the automotive trade are very much interested in Mr. Ford's health because they are firmly convinced that after Mr. Ford dies there will be a number of changes in the Ford organization. They also feel that the Ford Company may be bought out by some other interest because they do not feel that Henry Ford II is either qualified or has the desire to attempt to operate the Ford Company.

Re: LABOR CONDITIONS

About two weeks ago the War Manpower Commission estimated that there was a 58,000 employee shortage in the Chicago area. During the week I have had occasion to talk to of the Dodge Chicago Plant, and the Ford representative and both of them advised me that at the present time there is no labor shortage in so far as plants are concerned.

is an excess of skilled labor but that unskilled labor is not quite so plentiful because of the fact that workers do not want to work for less than $1.15 an hour. All of the large plants around Chicago are dismissing employees by the thousands and a number of the larger plants expect to shut down during July and August.

of rubber. [redacted] was impressed with Subject and his apparent knowledge of the physical conditions as well as the climate and people of Panama and looked upon his proposition with much favor. In this interview, [redacted] represented himself as being formerly connected with the Department of State and an attache to the Legation of some Central or South American country, and while serving in this capacity, saw the possibilities for the development of rubber plantations in Panama.

Before acting on the proposal submitted by [redacted] accompanied by [redacted] rubber expert and buyer of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, and [redacted] called on Mr. Henry Ford to get his opinion as to the feasibility of such an expedition. Mr. Ford was also impressed with [redacted] and seemed greatly interested in the proposition and encouraged [redacted] to send [redacted] to Panama with a view of obtaining options on land which he deemed suitable for the growing of rubber.

On June 4th, 1923, an agreement was entered into between Mr. Amos C. Miller, acting for the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company and who was then General Counsel and a Director of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company and [redacted] whereby [redacted] was to proceed forthwith to the Republic of Panama to acquire options to purchase between one and one and one-half million acres of land in the provinces of Colon, Veraguas, Chiriqui and Bocas del Toro. A drawing account of $25,000.00 was placed at the disposal of [redacted] with which he was to purchase the options and finance the expedition. Under the terms of this agreement [redacted] was to receive a salary of $500.00 per month. It was understood that [redacted] was not to use the name of H. S. Firestone, The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company or Henry Ford in connection with any of the deals he made, the same to be handled under the name of Mr. Amos C. Miller.

[redacted] the services of [redacted] in Panama were very unsatisfactory and his conduct was not at all pleasing to him. Shortly after [redacted] reached Panama, he negotiated for options on land, the acreage being far in excess of that authorized by the agreement, which, if carried out, would have resulted in obligations on behalf of Mr. Amos C. Miller, representing the Firestone organization, of about $1,000,000.00. He also betrayed the confidence imposed in him by boastfully stating to officers of the United States Army and others that he represented the interests of Henry Ford and H. S. Firestone. When information of his conduct reached the Firestone organization, he was cabled to suspend further activities in their behalf until the arrival of their representatives. [redacted] rubber expert, and [redacted] of the legal staff of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company were immediately sent to check up on Subject's activities.

On arrival in Panama, [redacted] found that [redacted] was much more interested in a tribe of "White Indians", which he was supposed to have discovered while on his travels about Panama, than in the matters which he was delegated to investigate and in which Mr. Firestone was particularly interested. [redacted] accompanied [redacted] on a tour of inspection along the coast of Panama and into several of the provinces, but did not approve any of the options as they found the land rugged and mostly infertile and in their judgment not suitable for extensive rubber production. Further activities on behalf of Mr. Firestone by [redacted] were abandoned and [redacted] returned to the United States with [redacted]

Subsequent proposals dated December 10th, 1925 and November 15th, 1925 were submitted by [redacted] to Mr. Firestone, regarding expeditions into sections of Panama in the interests of science and commerce, in which he would have the co-operation of the United States Army and Navy, the United States Department of Commerce, and other government agencies, President Norras of Panama, and the representatives of the Smithsonian Institution and several of the leading universities would accompany him. These proposals called for an advance to [redacted] by Mr. Firestone of $10,000 and $15,000 respectively for expenses and he, [redacted] was to receive as remuneration for his services a 10% interest in any of the land acquired for the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company. Mr. Firestone refused to entertain these proposals and in his reply to [redacted] stated he had no further interests in his activities. b7c

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. E. A. TAMM

Time: 10:25 PM

Special Agent <sup>Chas. Rogers</sup> ~~W. A. Bennett~~ of the <sup>Detroit</sup> ~~San Diego~~ Office telephonically communicated with writer at this time advising that a conversation between Ford, Lindbergh, and Bennett had been overheard and Lindbergh was reported to have stated that he was obtaining considerable information from an Army officer. Lindbergh is reported to have called on this man at Washington, D. C., and this individual enlightened him on certain aspects pertaining to the Army and Navy. Lindbergh is reported to have said that this man held the same view as he did; to wit, that we were woefully unprepared to wage any successful campaign against the Axis at this time.

It was reported that Lindbergh stated he was getting his information directly from a few sources in the Army and Navy who were in a position to know what they were talking about.

This conversation is reported to have taken place at Bennett's office about three weeks ago.

Respectfully,

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TAMM

The writer received a telephone call from SAC Bugas at Detroit, at which time he advised that you had requested him to interview Harry Bennett with reference to his conversation with Lindbergh some time ago.

Bugas stated that he had interviewed Bennett who stated that about three weeks ago Lindbergh had come to Detroit, apparently at the invitation of Mr. Ford, but this was not quite clear; that they had had a conversation in which Mr. Ford had remonstrated with Lindbergh about his trying to appear as an authority on the armed strength of the United States and on how many soldiers and how much equipment it would take to bring a war against Germany to a successful close. According to Bennett, Henry Ford cautioned Lindbergh about talking about things he knew little about first hand; that is, how our forces were set up, the strength of our forces and the technical matters concerning our armed forces. Ford further told Lindbergh that the heads of our Army and Navy must certainly know what they are doing because they are in close touch with the situation and have all the facts in their possession. To that Lindbergh made a rather general reply to the effect that he was not talking without having facts in his possession; that he was getting a great many of his facts from the people holding high positions in the Army. He mentioned one man by name in Washington, D. C. who was an Army officer; however, Mr. Bennett stated he was not able to recall the name in view of the numerous other matters that were mentioned.

Bugas stated that this conversation appeared to be a three-cornered conversation with Henry Ford, Bennett and Lindbergh all taking a part; that Lindbergh indicated that when in Washington he usually made it a point to drop into the War Department and while there he would contact this Army officer whose views were in line with Lindbergh's and who would usually furnish Lindbergh with information concerning these matters.

Bugas stated there was no mention made which would indicate that Lindbergh in any way knew of the existence of the war plans; that the conversation between Ford and Lindbergh occurred about three weeks ago.

Mr. SIMONS. I have talked on the unemployment situation in many places. I have made, particularly within the last year, during the unemployment drive of 2,000,000 out of work. This is one of the main issues before us and, naturally, receives primary attention.

Mr. BACHMANN. Have you told your audience not to be alarmed about the present unemployment conditions?

Mr. SIMONS. Do I tell them that! That comes from the capitalists; the capitalists are the ones that tell the workers there is nothing to be worried about.

Mr. BACHMANN. I did not ask you that; I asked you if you told them that?

Mr. SIMONS. I stated yesterday that I put forward the program of the Communist Party—the enactment of a national social insurance bill that I presented yesterday.

Mr. BACHMANN. I did not ask you that.

Mr. SIMONS. That is what we stand for.

Mr. BACHMANN. I asked you if you tell the workers in your audience not to be alarmed about the unemployment situation?

Mr. SIMONS. I will tell you exactly what I tell them.

Mr. BACHMANN. I do not want to know all that you tell them;
I just want to know whether you tell them that or not?

Mr. SIMONS. I want to tell you exactly what I tell them and then you can judge whether it is a matter of alarm or not. I tell them the facts. Whether it is alarming information, I tell them the facts about unemployment in the United States, and I tell them that unemployment is growing; I quote the financial papers of the boss class, the New York Analyst, and I quote that conditions are getting worse.
There is more unemployment; wage cuts are growing. I tell them it certainly is alarming for the working class and certainly is alarming for the boss class, because they can not solve the unemployment.

Mr. BACHMANN. Now would you mind going back and answering the question?

Mr. SIMONS. Well, that is my answer.

Mr. BACHMANN. Let me ask you whether or not you made a speech in Oakland on or about July 27, 1930?

Mr. SIMONS. It is hard to say; I have made so many speeches in Oakland.

Mr. BACHMANN. Well, about that time?

Mr. SIMONS. I could not state definitely. I have made speeches there from time to time and may have made one on that date. If you will tell me which particular one you are referring to, where it was made, I might refresh my recollection.

Mr. BACHMANN. Let me ask you whether or not you said in a speech what I am going to read to you, on or about the 27th of July, at Oakland:

Fellow workers and comrades, don't be alarmed at this unemployment situation and the economic crisis that confronts us here to-day. Fellow workers, do you know that the workers of Russia are denying and depriving themselves of all luxuries, even the necessities and essentials of life, to produce commodities in Soviet Russia and ship them to the United States to flood the markets over here; to cause manufacturers to shut down; to undersell the American manufacturer, throwing the workers of the United States into the unemployed army; simply fertilizing the fields to sow seeds of communism in the United States?

What difference does it make to you if we gain our point, if we do produce these things by communist labor? We are all workers for the cause of freedom.

for the emancipation of the proletariat throughout the whole world. Next, is Mr. Fiat and his henchmen going to put an embargo on Russian products and commodities, when we have Henry Ford, the Santa Marchese, etc., and the General Electric Co. backing up against the Government to get the embargo and to keep it permanently off until they have drained their vast resources with Soviet Russia? Do you think for a minute that these companies, with their millions of dollars that they have taken from you workers, are going to allow an interference with getting the rest of the money that they have not already gotten?

Did you make that statement in a speech?

Mr. SIMONS. I will tell you what I may have said.

Mr. BACHMANN. I did not ask you that; I asked you whether you made that statement. All I want to know is whether you made it or did not?

Mr. SIMONS. You can not get any yes or no answer on that. I will tell you what I said. If you quote to me three pages long and ask me "Yes or no," you can not get any yes-or-no answer.

Mr. BACHMANN. Did you make this statement?

Mr. SIMONS. Has this been testified to the committee as evidence of a speech I made, or not? I want to know who is presenting this and is this an official document before the committee?

Mr. BACHMANN. Did you make that statement I read to you in a speech at Oakland on or about the date I stated?

Mr. SIMONS. Can I know who is presenting this as a speech of mine?

Mr. BACHMANN. I am asking you whether you made that statement or not?

Mr. SIMONS. I want to know, first, who says I made a speech like that.

Mr. BACHMANN. Answer the question.

Mr. SIMONS. I will tell you what I said. You are covering about 55 points in that. It is impossible to say yes or no. I will tell you what I said about those conditions.

Mr. BACHMANN. I do not want to know what you said other than an answer to the question, whether or not you made this statement in a speech over there. I have not any time to listen to your speeches or wrangling about what you want to say now. Did you make this statement in a speech, or didn't you make it?

Mr. SIMONS. I will tell you what I said about the unemployment crisis.

Mr. BACHMANN. Are you afraid to say whether you did make that statement, or not?

Mr. SIMONS. It is not a matter of fear. I told you yesterday about what I said about unemployment and everything else when you asked about the Soviet Union. We are trying to tell the workers who are responsible for the unemployment conditions in this country—

The CHAIRMAN. The question asked you was merely if that is an accurate statement of what you said. You refuse to answer!

Mr. SIMONS. I wish to answer; I will answer the question whether or not I said it.

The CHAIRMAN. We have asked you whether that is a correct statement of what you said.

whether that is a correct state-us in general, that is a false- could not have said, when they put the blame on the working class here in the Soviet Union and the Communist Party for conditions for which you are responsible. That is simply propaganda you are bringing in here that is absolutely untrue.

The CHAIRMAN. You deny the statement? That is a copy of what you said, sworn to before the committee, and you deny it?

Mr. SIMONS. I will give you a chance, if you will let me tell you—

The CHAIRMAN. We do not want any speeches; you are not going to get a chance to make any speeches; but, if you want, you may take this and answer what was read here and point out wherein it is wrong as to what you said.

Mr. SIMONS. All right; let me have that statement. I never made any statement to the workers of America "don't be alarmed at this unemployment situation and the economic crisis that confronts us here to-day." On the contrary, I tell them it is a situation that is alarming and getting worse and the workers must organize against it and demand unemployment insurance.

And the statement that the workers of Russia are denying and depriving themselves of all luxuries, and so forth, to produce commodities in Soviet Russia and ship them to all markets—I never made any such statement, and that has been backed up even in the wheat proposition your committee has been investigating, where the brokers have said in effect it was a hedging proposition by the Soviet Union and had no effect on prices; was not responsible for the crisis in agriculture and the driving of the farmers off of their lands. No, sir. On the contrary, I said that the policy of the Government—

Mr. NELSON. Contrary to what?

Mr. SIMONS. Contrary to causing the manufacturers to shut down, that the policy was to keep them alive on orders from the Soviet Government.

Mr. NELSON. I want to give you every opportunity in the world, but just do this: Read there what it says and, if you did not say it, say so. Then I have no objection to your stating what you did say; but, at least, let us have some order to this.

Mr. SIMONS. All right. The charge here is that I said the Russian workers are responsible for causing the manufacturers to shut down.

Mr. NELSON. You did not say that?

Mr. SIMONS. No.

Mr. NELSON. Then put it in that order; because, if you want to deny this, do it; but denying something out of your head does not put it in the record, and you want it to go into the record.

Mr. SIMONS. I thought the record was to be authentic. Perhaps I should not have thought so.

Mr. NELSON. It is; but you read a sentence and you do not get the sentence into the record unless you read it out loud, and you do not get your denial into the record.

Mr. SIMONS. What is the record kept for then—only to put in what you want?

Mr. NELSON. You read the paragraph there and then say what you said. We do not know what you are reading.

Mr. SIMONS. I read that there [indicating].

INVESTIGATION OF COMMUNIST PROPAGANDA

Mr. NELSON. Read it now and, if you did not say it, say what you did say.

Mr. SIMONS (reading). Fellow workers and comrades, don't be alarmed at this unemployment situation and the economic crisis that confronts us here to-day. Fellow workers, do you know that the workers of Russia are starving and depriving themselves of all luxuries, even the necessities and essentials of life, to produce commodities in Soviet Russia and ship them to the United States to flood the markets over here; to cause manufacturers to shut down; to undersell the American manufacturer, throwing the workers of the United States into the unemployed army; simply fertilizing the fields to sow seeds of communism.

Mr. BACHMANN. Did you make that statement?

Mr. SIMONS. No. My statement was that the conditions in this country are responsible, the system itself in this country, the periodical, cyclical crises, cause unemployment, cause plants to be shut down, and that the Soviet Union was sending out their products, at some sacrifice, although the workers have a fair standard of living, which is constantly improving, better than it was before the war; that they are sending out goods in order to get credits to be able to buy machinery, to build up industries so that the working class conditions can be improved and that is what they are doing it for. The responsibility for the crisis is upon the American capitalist.

What difference does it make to you if we gain our point, if we do produce these things by convict labor?

I want to say that in the Soviet Union—

Mr. NELSON. Wait a minute. Did you make that statement?

Mr. SIMONS. I did not. I said that so far as the Soviet Union is concerned, labor is free and even those in prisons, the labor of prisoners is not in competition with labor of other workers in the Soviet Union—no competition. It does not affect them; it is simply that the prisoner is treated as a worker and a human being and permitted to live and to support his family, instead of as here the worker doing work because he is a victim of the capitalist of this country.

We are all martyrs for the cause of freedom.

I never made any such statement. Nobody talks about martyrdom. Every one in the Communist Party knows the class to which he belongs and does his share for the working class movement and organization.

Now, is Mr. Fish and his henchmen going to put an embargo on Russian products and commodities, when we have Henry Ford, the Austin Manufacturing Co., and the General Electric Co. backing us, causing this country to lift the embargo and keep it permanently off until they have fulfilled their 500,000,000 contracts with Soviet Russia?

It is such a confused statement that I never could have made it. Discussing the embargo, I pointed out that this was a method used by the bosses of this country to protect themselves and stated that the Soviet Union had a right, we defend the right of the Soviet Union, to send its good anywhere, all over the world, to be put on the market, because that would benefit the working class of the Soviet Union and would not be used against the working class anywhere else.

Do you think for a minute that these companies, with their millions of dollars that they have taken from you workers, are going to allow any interference with getting the rest of the money that they have not already gotten?

All religions have the same purpose, but since we live in a Christian country we have to pay more attention to the destruction of the Christian religion than to any other. We have to free the brains of the workers so they will want to free their own bodies. Many radicals are of the opinion that the religious issue will take care of itself. It will not. Capitalism is taking care of it now, to the great injury of the workers. It is up to the radical groups to take care of it, expose its power and its fallacy, in order to free the slave brain from the insanity of religious faith. Do you doubt that religion is a form of insanity? We confine in an asylum the man who says that he is Napoleon; and we let the man who sings "I'm going to be an angel" live freely in our midst.

The gods and god worshippers and the capitalists who finance both, should either prove the existence of their gods or consign them to oblivion. It is up to the believers in a Supreme Being to prove there is one. They have never done so. They accept on faith what no one has ever demonstrated by fact to exist. Moreover, it is up to any being who wants to be accepted as a god to prove his own claims to divinity in such a manner that no one—child, savage, or scientist—can possibly misunderstand. If your god is omnipotent, he should have sufficient power to demonstrate his own existence. If he is merciful, he should desire to do so, that religious dissension may be prevented.
 If he is a jealous god, then he should do the same thing for his own glory.
 The world is several hundred billion years old. As we have waited all these billions of years for proof of the existence of god, we are likely to wait some time longer. No god ever did anything to demonstrate his own existence.

The religionist's position is the positive. The atheist's position is the negative. No court of law requires the proof of a negative. It is up to the gods and the god-worshippers to prove their positive position. No man, for example, can prove that he is not guilty of murder, theft, or any other crime.
 The law presumes him innocent until he is proven guilty. When the jury brings in a verdict of "not guilty" they do so simply because the prosecution has failed to prove his guilt, not at all because he has proven his innocence.
 No negative can be demonstrated, every positive can be. If a positive statement can not be demonstrated, then that of itself proves the negative to be the correct and truthful position. No god has ever been proven to exist, therefore the atheist takes the logical position that he does not exist.

The agnostic straddles the fence, either through fear of public opinion, family troubles, or through a sneaking fear that there might be a god, and if there is one, he wants to stand well with him. In other words, the agnostic is still obsessed by the remains of the religious fear implanted in him while he was a helpless child.

Capitalism has no use for atheists who come along and destroy its gods and upset its ethical creed. It knows that if the man or woman who scoffs at gods and hells and heavens is allowed to go freely about inspiring others to do likewise the god idea will soon fall into disrepute. The K. K. K. has already announced that speakers for the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism will not be allowed to talk in certain States. It may be assumed that the Klan is prepared to use violence to prevent atheist meetings or, as in the present case, debates between atheists and theologians, as there is no legal means of doing so. A movement to put the Bible into the schools of California and other States which do not now compel religious instruction is well organized and heavily financed. Other religious groups, also well supplied with money, are organized for the purpose of controlling the leisure time of the people. Capitalism, not being able to force people to attend church services by direct legislation has, with the aid of the holy ones of god, devised laws and regulations which make it illegal to go anywhere else, or engage in any amusement or useful occupation on Sunday. By such means they hope to enforce church attendance. People like to go somewhere on the only day when they are not working and the godly believe that they will go to church if all other attractions are closed to them. Capitalism has been careless in this matter for a number of years and church attendance has steadily decreased. But in a very few years, if that class has its will done, there will be no place to go on Sunday except to a church; and a few years later they will make it illegal to stay at home.

Capitalism has unwittingly defeated some of its own objects in this matter of church attendance. Henry Ford, for example, is anxious to see religious flourish. He is a ver- religious man himself and expects everyone else to be, also. Yet the Ford factories have made and sold over 12,000,000 cheap cars, thereby giving millions of people something else to think about than the hereafter, and furnishing them with a means of taking their families to the open country on Sunday. The motion picture and the radio have done more to keep people away from churches and to weaken religious influence than any radical propaganda.

Capitalism realizes this. Hence the Sunday closing laws, the Government and church monopoly of the radio, Government censorship of the films, and other restrictive legislation. Having already secured control of the education of the children, of the press and other agencies of news, capitalism, with god at its side, is now assuming control of art, music, the movies, radio, book publishing, and all other means of disseminating information to the adult mind. Having already secured economic and political control of the earth, they are determined to secure brain control—to own the minds of the people from birth to death.

Not only does the ruling class propose to put the fear of god into the minds of the workers and their children; not only does it finance religious propaganda more liberally than ever before, but it is doing more than that to insure the future ignorance of the American people. Money is withheld from educational institutions which teach more science than theology. Teachers who show the slightest tendency to develop an individuality of thought, either in themselves or in their pupils, are being dismissed from service. Already in a half-dozen States laws have been passed forbidding the teaching of that branch of science which most openly clashes with all religious faith. Evolution has been made illegal as a subject for discussion and some States expressly state, in the laws intended to suppress scientific instruction, that "nothing shall be taught which conflicts with the story of creation as told in the Book of Genesis." As two conflicting stories of creation are set forth by Genesis and as nothing shall be taught which conflicts with either one, the Tennessee lawmakers and others have forbidden the reading of Genesis, as well as the teaching of evolution. A strict interpretation of the law would find teachers who read Genesis to their pupils as guilty as John T. Scopes.

This bold and open effort to suppress the knowledge of the modern scientific world and in its place give to the youth of our time the myths and legends of the ignorant, unwashed, half-naked, barbarians of from two to five thousand years ago is all financed and thoroughly organized. A dozen or more States will be asked to pass similar laws during the next year. The old battle between science and religion, which some of you had thought over and won by the scientists 50 years ago, is to be refought in the twentieth century. Ideas that belong to the ox-cart age of civilization will be broadcasted over the radio. Arguments that were discarded before printing presses were invented will be revived and published in modern newspapers. Miracle stories which were disbelieved by all the contemporaries of the alleged miracle workers will be remodeled and taught in the schools in place of geology. Your children will be studying the map of the New Jerusalem in place of astronomy. History will be taught with special reference to the acts of the apostles. Physiology will be revised to teach that rabbits lay eggs, that the hare has not a divided hoof but chews the cud, and that the bat is a bird. Geography will have to revise its maps in accordance with the flat-earth theory held by all the sanctified sons of god in past ages.

You may say that all this is absurd, and that not even the most ignorant preacher is so stupid as to believe that he can thus turn back the intelligence of the world 4,000 years. But they do believe it is possible to thus force their ideas on the public. They have passed many laws toward that end. They are prepared to wage a battle in every legislature in every State to attain their ends; and they expect to be victorious. They may not carry their teachings to such absurd lengths as I have indicated. They may not burn people at the stake or hang them as witches because they are teaching and publishing scientific truths. But they will blacklist them, starve them, and cut them off from the opportunity to use their knowledge for the benefit of humanity.

As soon as man ceases to depend on a god to help him, he begins to devise ways and means of helping himself. As soon as he learns that there is no god to hurt him, he begins to lose his fear of priests and politicians; as soon as he realizes there is no god to reward him for his sufferings, he desires to abolish suffering and reward himself of the god idea, he has a cleaner brain, more of making something of himself and of the world had before.

Man has done countless things which no god hands and feet were insufficient to do the bidding. He invented the machine. He was not satisfied to make a boat. He was not satisfied to stay so he made a submarine. He was not satisfied so he made the automobile; when his mind opened he made the airplane. He has made machines to make his transport him from place to place; do his writing, earth with the speed of light. He has made and turned the desert into a fertile garden. He and made them better and more useful. He and made them large and pleasant to the taste; bitter fruits and made them large, sweet, and lush to think for him. There is no limit to the desire is no limit to what he may sometime accomplish.

We are told by the book of Genesis that God his work good, and rested. He was satisfied. Ape, is never satisfied, never content. He never improvements. Man, himself the product of a further evolution of all useful forms of life, is a creation of the unfit. He is helping organic evolution the forces of nature.

Only the mud men and the gods are ever safe. When man can do more than the gods could he any longer depend upon them? Man may destroy his god. When he has destroyed his material and social system, he will have as a result than any god ever made.

Dear Sir:

RE: BREKID

There is being transmitted herewith a letter written to Mr. [redacted] dated at Cleveland, Ohio, January 6, 1936, written by one [redacted] Cleveland, Ohio, requesting $1,000,000 to be paid on or before January 30, 1936 by Mr. [redacted] to Mr. [redacted] if Mr. [redacted] desired to postpone the "wrath of God upon him." b7C

It has been ascertained by the Cleveland office that this individual has sent similar letters to [redacted] Mr. Edward George Bremer, and Mr. Henry Ford. It has also been established that this man is mentally deficient. b7C

The Bureau is being furnished the above described letter for the purpose of filing same in the Technical Laboratory in the event more letters of this description are received, or inquiry is later made of the Bureau by any of the above recipients of these letters.

Very truly yours,
